archello Zierhof, a project by NAEMAS Architekturkonzepte (@naemasarchitekten) in collaboration with Parlor_How, strives to portray the role of architecture and interior design in processing trauma. After the devastation of their inherited farm by fire, the owners sought to rebuild in a new location, guided by site analyses revealing optimal sunlight and orientation. The resulting design draws from historical references while bringing in contemporary elements, featuring facades echoing the farmhouse's past and asymmetrical gable roofs.
